BY THE HONOURABLE

ROBERT HUNTER MORRIS, Esq;

Lieutenant Governor, and Commander in Chief of the Province of Pennsylvania, and Counties of New-Castle, Kent, and Sussex, upon Delaware,

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it is the Duty of every Government to keep alive among the People a just Sense of their entire Dependence on the Providence of Almighty GOD, and to remind them of the intimate Connection between the Divine Favour and Publick Happiness, between National Calamity and National Vice; in order thereby to propagate that sincere Love of Religion and Virtue, which, under the Christian Dispensation, is the great Means of recommending a People to the Favour and Protection of Heaven: AND WHEREAS it is also the indispensable Duty of every Society of dependent Beings, in all their just Undertakings, to address themselves for Aid and Direction to the Supreme Lord of the Universe, and in all their Dangers and Wants, to deprecate his Displeasure, and implore his Mercy, through the infinite Merits and Intercession of his blessed Son our Lord JESUS CHRIST: AND WHEREAS being on the very Brink of a dangerous War, and, the benign Influences of the Heavens having been long withheld from us, threatned with the Want of the necessary Means of supporting ourselves, and the Army, which his Majesty has been graciously pleased to send for our Protection: WHEREFORE I have, by the Advice of the Council, thought fit to appoint Thursday, the Nineteenth Day of June, to be observed throughout this Province, and Counties under my Government, as a Day of publick Humiliation, Fasting and Prayer. And I do exhort all Persons to observe the same with becoming Seriousness and Attention; and to join with one Accord in the most humble and fervent Supplications, that Almighty GOD would be pleased to avert the Punishments due to our Sins, favour us with a fruitful Season, and give Success to the Measures, which his Majesty, ever attentive to the Good and Welfare of his People, has concerted for the Security and Preservation of their just Rights and Commerce. And I do recommend it to all Persons to abstain from servile Labour, and to the several Ministers of the Gospel to compose Prayers and Sermons suitable to the Occasion, and perform Divine Service in their respective Churches, or Houses of religious Worship, on that Day.

GIVEN under my Hand, and the Great Seal of the Province of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, this Sixth Day of June, in the Twenty-eight Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, King of Great-Britain, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and so forth, and in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-five.

ROBERT HUNTER MORRIS.

By his Honour's Command,
RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

GOD save the KING.

Sunday last arriv'd here the Shirley, Captain Moore, in 38 Days from Bristol, by whom we have the following Advices, viz.

WARSAW, March 8.

A GENTLEMAN having brought, by Appeal, one of the principal Lords of his Canton, before the Referendary of the Crown, was cast, and ordered to be imprisoned. The Lord did not think this sufficient Satisfaction, but went and dragged him out of the Dungeon, ordered him to be basfinadoed, then made the Hangman cut off his Arms and Legs, and afterwards put him to Death.

Petersburgh, March 9. A Commission is erected for the Improvement of the military Regulations made by Peter the Great. At the late Ball, a Diamond of 80000 Rubles Value dropt from her Majesty's Head, and no Account as yet can be had of it.

Hamburgh, March 25. The French Insurance Company have begun to raise their Premiums upon French and English Ships which confirms People in their Opinion that the War is inevitable.

Constantinople, Feb. 16. No less than Fourscore Thousand Workmen are employed in repairing the City. The Seraglio has been rebuilt from a most superb Model of an Italian Architect.

Constantinople, March 3. A few Days ago the Grand Signior went through this City on Horseback to a Country Seat, at a small Distance, from whence he returned the same Evening to the Seraglio: His Highness ordered the Guards, who used to march on each Side of him, to follow him both going and coming, by which the People had a full View of him, which gave them great Satisfaction. Every Body was charmed with this great Prince's Affability, and especially the Europeans, whom he took particular Notice of as he passed along.

Legborn, March 21. The News of the Algerines having declared War against the Emperor as Grand Duke of Tuscany is unhappily confirmed by a Vessel which came directly from Algiers, the Master of which reports, that the Dey had been forced into this Extremity against his Inclination, and that his Ministers had endeavoured to avoid this Step by declaring War against the Swedes or Danes, but the Populace were not to be diverted from a War with the Dutch and the Emperor, and particularly with the latter, as the Commerce of Tuscany and Trieste they alledged was very much increased within a few Years. This disagreeable News has thrown the Merchants here into the greatest Consternation.

Amsterdam, March 7. Saturday Night the College of the Admiralty of this City sat very late, deliberating on the Measures to be taken for protecting our Merchant-Men against the Algerine Corsairs.

Hague, April 7. The Government has resolved to send out several Men of War and Frigates, to protect our Trade and Navigation in the Mediterranean.

Genoa, March 21. As soon as the Crews of the English Ships in this Harbour, and at Leghorn, heard of the Proclamation published by the King, their Sovereign, for recalling his Seamen, and offering them a Bounty, to enter into his Service, they went immediately to their Captains, and begged of them to carry them home as soon as possible.

Hamburg, April 4. The News of the Algerines having declared War against the Dutch and Imperialists, hath occasioned a great Consternation among the Merchants of this City, who are apprehensive the Infidels will make no Distinction between their Ships and those of the Nations above-mentioned.

Paris, April 4. Within these two or three Days People have begun to entertain Hopes of an Accommodation with England, which are partly built on the Recal of Mr. Dupleix, which they imagine will be very agreeable to the English. Some lay so much Stress on this Circumstance, that they lay considerable Bets, that an Accommodation between the two Crowns will be concluded before the first of May: And the Actions have risen from 1736 to 1767.

Amsterdam, April 10. The Admiralty of this Place have put seven Men of War into Commission; that of the Maese three; that of Zealand three; and that of North Holland two. Which will form a Squadron of fifteen Ships.

LONDON.

March 25. We find, by private Advices from Stockholm, that the late Conference between the French Ambassador and the Swedish Ministry did not only turn upon building several more Men of War in Sweden for the Service of the French Court, but that an Article is likewise added to the Subsidy Treaty, whereby the Swedish Court is to furnish France with 6000 Seamen, in case of a Rupture between the latter and Great-Britain; which does not seem improbable, as the French want Sailors more than Land-Forces, and Sweden may be of more Use to them by Sea than upon the Continent, especially if any extraordinary Job is to be done in North-Britain.

March 29. Britain must not expect to be free from Commotions at Home, or Attacks on her Trade, Navigation, and Settlements Abroad, so long as she suffers such a Number of Romish Priests to be imported: Religion is their Pretext, but their Mission is more extensive. Treason, Fraud, and Hypocrisy are they licensed to practise; they create Dissatisfaction, they insinuate and instil bad Principles into the Minds of the Vulgar, they corrupt their Morals with Disloyalty, and solve their Treasons by Absolution; they are the Stem of many Evils, and should be cut down e'er the Sap put forth Branches: And if we will but look round us, we shall find in every Port or Town of any Consideration throughout the whole Island, one or two of these religious Spies, who watch our Actions narrowly, improve on our Folly, transmit their Intelligence, and are vigilant and active while we sleep in Security. And are they not quite incorrigible, so avowedly and openly to assemble together? Is not this a manifest Breach of the Law? Is any of their Chapels licensed but those for Ambassadors? Why then do we suffer our Laws to be violated by a Sett of Miscreants, who condemn us to Perdition, and damn us in the Lump; and who so arrogantly presume on the Clemency of a good King, and the known Christian Tenderness of a Protestant Administration? But let them know, that if the British Lion be generous, he may be roused: And when thoroughly provok'd, not easily appeas'd.

Ah! my dear Countrymen! let us not be idle Spectators, and shamefully look on, when our Honour, our Interest, and (what is still more dear) our Liberties are at Stake: Let us for once despise the Rodomontades of France: Let the English Flag spurn the Gallic Insolence; and let Lewis know that our Sailors are brave, and dare be honest; and that every true Briton is ready to oppose French Knavery, Popish Priestcraft, and all their Sophistry of Home-made Goods.

April 3. In the last Haerlem Courant we find an Account from Petersburgh, that there has been presented to the Czarina, a labouring Man, who has had two Wives; the first of which brought him four Times Four Children at a Birth, seven Times Three, and ten Times Two at each Birth. The second Wife has lain in seven Times, the first of which she brought forth Three Children, and the other six Times Two at a Birth. The whole Number of Children by the two Wives amounts to 72.

April 5. Two thousand Marines are to go on board the Fleet as soon as possible; and every Marine who shall be wounded is to have Smart-Money allowed out of the Chest at Chatham.

Yesterday the Right Hon. the Earl of Bristol kissed his Majesty's Hand, on being appointed Ambassador at the Court of Turin, in the Room of the Earl of Rochefort.

April 8. By many Letters receiv'd by Yesterday's French Mail, we find a general Dissatisfaction prevails among the Merchants in the Sea-port Towns of France, on account of the Measures pursued by the Court.

Some of them intimate, that they are pretty certain there will be no War, as their King will make such Condescensions to the King of Great-Britain, as will prevent a Rupture.

The French Indiaman arrived at Port l'Orient from Pondicherry brings an Account, that the new French Governor of that Place had sent Propositions of Peace to ------ Saunderson, Esq; the English Governor of Fort St. George.

The Magistrates of Innerkeithing have unanimously agreed to give Twenty Shillings Sterling, over and above his Majesty's Bounty, for all able-bodied Seamen within that Town and Liberties, who shall voluntarily enter themselves, and Ten Shillings Sterling for all ordinary Seamen. They have likewise promised and obliged themselves to cause to be paid by their Town Treasurer to the Wife or Family of every able-bodied married Sailor, inlisting, the Sum of Three Pounds Sterling yearly, so long as they continue aboard any of his Majesty's Ships; these Sums to be repaid to the Treasurer, when such Sailors shall have received Payment from His Majesty. Also,

The Magistrates of Dundee have agreed to give to every able-bodied Sailor, who enters voluntarily to serve on board any of his Majesty's Ships, Thirty Shillings Sterling.

We hear from Holland, that the Dutch have received a Remittance of Three Millions of Guilders from their Settlements in India, raised by a Tax of the Fiftieth Penny, which the States have unanimously resolved to apply towards the Re-fitting of their Navy.

April 9. If the Spaniards should not join the French, we may be assured they have Cunning enough not to declare War openly; but will content themselves with continuing to steal from us privately. Now the Question is,---Whether WE have not already received Insults sufficient to justify our Declaration?

Every Body is in Expectation of News from America, it not being doubted but some Blow is struck before this Time.

April 10. We hear there is a Scheme to raise a Million by two Lotteries of 500 000 l. each.

The Lottery on Foot will consist of 100 000 Tickets, at Ten Pounds each. Ten per Cent is to be deducted for publick Use, and the remaining 900,000 l. to be converted into Annuities at Three per Cent. Subscription Books are to be open'd at the Bank, and Twenty per Cent must be paid on or before the 15th of this Month. The Interest to commence from Christmas next.

The Members of the Stokesly Club in Cleveland, Yorkshire, have offered an additional Sum of Two Guineas, to every able-bodied Seaman, who shall voluntarily enter himself to serve on board his Majesty's Fleet before the First Day of May next. And

The Bailiff, Aldermen and Burgesses, of Malden, in Essex, at their Quarter Sessions, have agreed to give the like Sum, to any able-bodied Seaman, who shall enter before the Thirtieth Instant.

April 11. At a Time when our most inveterate Enemies and Rivals, both in Trade and Dominion, are making the most alarming Efforts against our Religion, Laws, Liberties and Properties, it certainly demands our speediest Attention to crush (at least by every Means in our Power) whatever may contribute to the Accomplishment of their unjust and villainous Schemes. Such for Instance, as our suppressing (at all Events) the prodigious Quantities of their Growths, Manufactures, and Commodities smuggled into Great-Britain and Ireland, whence a Loss accrues to those Nations in the Revenue and Excise, of some Millions annually. The present Condition and Management of the Islands of Guernsey, Jersey, and Man, do in a very particular Manner contribute to this destructive Evil, and may be reckon'd the most formidable Branches thereof.----The Cure is easy---Use legal Means to stop such Imports into those Islands, and their Exports (of such Kinds) must cease of Course. If lessening considerably the Trade of our most dangerous Enemies; if greatly encouraging and increasing our own; if adding vastly to our Revenue; if promoting honest Industry, sound Morals, and a more robust, healthy and useful Breed of our own Subjects, be interesting Considerations, the Neglect of them will be as surely as severely felt, much sooner than is generally imagined.

April 12. We hear that the Empress of Russia, in case of a Rupture with France, will assist England with twenty Men of War.

April 15. Private Letters from Paris by Yesterday's French Mail say, that a grand Council was to be held on Sunday Evening last, on the important Point of War or Peace; the Result of which, it is expected, will be known here by To-morrow Night.

According to Advices from Brest, dated March 31 all the Troops designed for the Embarkation were arrived in the Neighbourhood of that Port, and all Things were in Readiness for their going on board upon the first Order from Court.

Six Men of War, from 50 to 90 Guns, are to sail directly for Jamaica, under the Command of Commodore Stevens.

Some who are acquainted with Maritime Affairs, say, that the Winds which have blown for some Time, have made it impossible for any Fleets to sail either from Brest or Portsmouth; contrary to some Reports lately published.

They write from Algiers, that since the Declaration of War against the Dutch and Imperialists, all Hands are at Work in fitting out Corsairs; ten Xebeques were ready to put to Sea in the Beginning of March; and they talked of equipping fourteen more, but it was doubted whether they would be able to sail before the Beginning of May, for want of experienced Pilots and Seamen. In the mean Time the Dey has issued Orders for pressing and inlisting Sailors in all Places along the Coast of Algiers.

Walkinshaw, brought from Scotland lately for treasonable Practices, is not in Town, as affirmed in other Papers, but in an Inn at Barnet, strongly guarded by a Party of Dragoons.---He is supposed to be of Lord Lovat's Cast, a cunning, rather than a daring Rebel.

It is said, his Majesty has been pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood on Charles Hardy, Esq; Governor of New-York.

April 17. Letters received Yesterday from France assure, that the Brest Fleet was to sail between the 17th and 20th Instant, upon an important Expedition, and some pretend that a Descent is intended on the Coast of Ireland.

From Paris they tell us, that the Camp in Alsace will consist of Twenty-two Battalions, eighteen Squadrons of Horse, twelve of Dragoons, and six of Hussars; that in the Neighbourhood of Saar Louis will consist of fifteen Battalions, fourteen Squadrons of Horse, six of Dragoons, and four of Hussars. There is to be a third and stronger Camp in Flanders. It is added, the whole Naval Force of France will be at Sea in the Month of May, in three Divisions; the first and second are to proceed with the Troops on Board for Canada; the third is to remain upon the Coast, for the Defence of their Trade.

His Excellency the Marquis of Hartington, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, has ordered all such Officers of his Majesty's Forces upon the Establishment of Ireland as are absent, and not on the Recruiting Service, to repair forthwith to their respective Ports in that Kingdom.

On the 8th Instant Orders were received at Litchfield, for the immediate March towards London of a Regiment of Dragoons, which which were to have been reviewed there by Sir Robert Rich; and they accordingly marched the next Day, without being review'd by the General, tho' he was then there for that Purpose.

We hear that the Companies of Invalids are to be augmented to 100 Men each.

Some of the Marine Companies are already almost full, the Men coming in very fast to inlist.

We hear that the Subscription at the Bank for the Lottery amounts to about 3880000 l. which is near four Times the Sum intended to be raised.

We hear that Ten Thousand Land Forces are to be raised very speedily.

We hear that a great Shock of an Earthquake was felt at Stepney Yesterday Morning, a little before One a Clock, attended with a very great Noise.

The Nations recorded in History to have been at any Time possessed of the Empire of the Sea, have always esteemed a neighbouring Prince's offering to set up a Naval Power, by building more Ships of War than were requisite to secure the Trade of his Subjects from Piracies, &c. to be as just a Foundation of political Jealousy, as the Raising of new Forts upon his Frontiers, or the Levying of a formidable Army in a Time of profound Peace; and, therefore, they have taken Measures either to prevent such Attempts, or to destroy them in their Birth. This was the Practice of the Romans, and this has been the Practice of his Majesty's Royal Predecessors, the Kings of England.

The Romans, as soon as they had acquired the Sovereignty of the Sea (which they thought not dearly purchased with the Loss of 700 Ships) immediately enter'd upon Measures to preserve so valuable an Acquisition. They grew watchful over this new Dominion, and were soon alarm'd by the smallest Umbrage from any Power that did seem to interfere with them in Naval Affairs. It was from these Political Considerations that they would not permit the Carthaginians to fit out any Fleets, and that they forbid Antiochus (at that Time the greatest King in the East) to build more than twelve Ships of War.

Upon the like Principles his late Majesty King George acted, when the Spanish Fleet was destroyed by Sir George Byng in the Mediterranean. This single Action rendered the King of Great-Britain, at that Time, as much Master of the Mediterranean, as he has been always acknowledged to be Sovereign over the British Seas. This many Years prevented the Growth of the Naval Power of Spain; and did not England and Holland act in Concert, from the like Motive, when they insisted on the Dissolution of the late Ostend East-India Company, in the Austrian Netherlands? For the chief Reason given by the maritime Powers was, lest a new Naval Power should arise in Europe, in Consequence of this commercial Establishment.

There is no Occasion for troubling our Readers with a Detail of Examples to the present Purpose, since nothing is more known in our English History, than that our Kings have ever been jealous of their Naval Strength, and have accordingly judged it of the greatest Importance to frustrate such Designs, though at the Risk of a War: For what less did our immortal Queen Elizabeth risk, when she sent to the French King, to prohibit his building any more Ships of War than what he had, without her Leave first obtain'd? This was a very great Instance of Wisdom and Resolution, worthy a Princess who claimed the Sovereignty of the Sea.

The Chimes of the Royal Exchange Clock now play every Day, by Order of the Lord Mayor, Britons strike Home!

Complaints have been lately made of the Exorbitancy of Fees in a certain Foreign Office, we hear that, as there is an Appearance of War, the Fees of Officers are to be regulated, especially those belonging to the Army and Navy, great Encroachments having been made, under the Pretence of Fees for Services, by certain Blood sucking and unconscionable Wretches, within these few Years past.

We can assure the Publick, that 80 Sail of Ships, most of whom are of the Burthen of 300 Tons, carrying Forty Men or upwards, will be employed this Year in the Greenland Fishery, from the Ports of Great-Britain. It is computed that the Value of these Ships fitted out for Sea, is 3000 l. per Ship, amounting in the Whole to 240,000 l. So much has this Fishery, which the Dutch call the small Fishery, out-stripped the Herring with us, which they call the great.

The last Letters from Constantinople, do not represent Osman the Third in the same bright Characters as formerly; but, on the Contrary, leave Mankind little Reason to expect either good or great Things, from a Man cruel, ungrateful, and capable of the utmost Dissimulation.

Extract of a Letter from Gosport, April 14.

KINGSTON, in Jamaica, May 3.

We are informed by some Dutch Captains, who arrived at Port-Royal on Thursday Evening last, in a small Boat, that the French at Porto-Prince, &c. have positive Orders from their Court to take all Dutch Vessels that may be found sailing in their Seas, and that there is a 64 Gun Ship, and several Guarda Costas, now cruizing, who took 26 Dutch Vessels in one Day.

ANNAPOLIS, June 3.

We hear from almost all Parts of the Province, that the great Drought has already entirely burnt up the Flax and Oats.

By a Letter from one of our Captives in Canada, we are informed, that a great Number of French Soldiers, have lately marched from thence for the Ohio.

We have Advice from Sheepscut, that on the 23d of last Month, Mr. Ross, with two of his Sons, and an elderly Man and a Lad, were fired upon by a Number of Indians, as they were at Work in a Field, who afterwards took them all Prisoners, and carried them off.

Saturday last came Advice from North Yarmouth, in Casco Bay, that the Indians had killed one Mr. Stone, on the Back of that Town, and cut him to Pieces, and taken another Man Captive, who had been out a hunting with him.

Saturday last a Soldier in the Camp on Noddle's Island, received 250 Lashes, and was afterwards drummed out of the Regiment, with a Halter about his Neck (agreeable to the Sentence of a Court Martial) for striking and otherwise abusing his Officer, &c.

We have a Report in Town, that thirteen large Ships have lately been seen on the Banks of Newfoundland, supposed to be French Men of War. This is Fishermens News.

About 3 a Clock last Thursday Morning, the Glass-house in Braintree, was set on Fire by Lightning, and entirely consumed to Ashes, with six other Buildings contiguous to it, together with all the Utensils and Stock therein.

On Thursday Night last, we had very heavy Thunder here; by which the Brick and Wood-work of the Top of the Light-House, at the Entrance of our Harbour, received some Damage; and we hear from German-Town, that the Glass-House erected there, was struck by Lightning the same Night, which set fire to the same, and in a short Time it was entirely consumed.

NEW-YORK, June 9.

By Letters from London, (via Boston) dated the 26th of April, we learn, that Admiral Boscawen was sailed from England, for Halifax, in Nova-Scotia, with 7 Ships of the Line; and that there was the greatest Reason to believe War was unavoidable.

We hear that Captain James Kennier is appointed Aid de Camp to Major General Shirley, whose Regiment is soon expected here from Boston.

Captain Gelston, in 18 Days from Antigua, says, that Captain Cozzens, in a Snow from Philadelphia, was to sail in two Days after him; and that Captain Edward Dunscomb, would sail for this Port in 10 Days after him.

Last Saturday Sir WILLIAM PEPPERRELL, Baronet, who commanded the Forces at the Reduction of Louisbourg, received a Commission as Major-General in his Majesty's Army; and we doubt not will again distinguish himself in the intended Attack upon the French Encroachments on our Frontiers; his Regiment being almost 700 strong, all picked Men, great Part of them already on Duty. And 'tis said that a Detachment from that Regiment, now encamped on Nutten-Island, will embark for Albany this Week.

We hear the New-Jersey Forces are embarking.

A Letter from Shrewsbury acquaints us, that three or four French Sailors are taken up there, who landed near Sandy-Hook not many Days ago: 'Twas said they belong'd to a French Vessel that came for Provisions, and that the French Sailors were put ashore, and Englishmen clapt on board, till the Vessel was loaded, when they were to be exchang'd again. If this be true, and suffer'd to pass, to what Purpose are our Laws to prevent furnishing our Enemies with Provisions made? And more especially at this Juncture, when the afflictive Hand of Providence seems to hang over us, and threatens us with the Desolations of War and Famine at the same time.

We have the following shocking and melancholly Account from Kats-Kill, near Albany, viz. That about a Fortnight ago, a Servant Woman in that Neighbourhood absconded from her Master, the better to consummate her Nuptials with her Lover, against whom we are told he was extremely averse, and sent out two Indians in order to bring her back: They overtook her on the Road, and demanded her Return, which she readily consented to, and was met soon after by her Master on Horseback, who, regardless of the most moving Intreaties of the young Woman to the contrary, and not apprehending the Consequence, tied her cross-handed to his Horse's Tail, who presently after taking Fright, flung his Rider, and tore the poor Creature Limb from Limb; nothing being found hanging to his Tail but her two Hands, and Part of her Arms, after he had run near seven Miles. Her Master immediately surrender'd himself up to Justice.

And from Barnagat, Little Egg-Harbour, and Country round about there, we learn, that a very great Fire happen'd in the Cedar Swamps, on the 20th of May last, and burnt with such Violence, that in a few Days Time it render'd desolate Lands to the Extent of near thirty Miles, the Trees and ready cut Shingles being intirely burnt to Cinders, and most of the Inhabitants reduced thereby to meer Penury and Want. And it was with the utmost Difficulty that Hawkins's Swamp was preserv'd from the Conflagration, of which no Account could be given how it first began.

Saturday Night last, the House of James Mills, Inn-holder, was broke open by some Rogues, who stole from thence, one Silver Mug, marked A. M Maker's Name, P. V. D, one Ditto English make, old fashioned; two old fashioned Spoons, with Seals at the Ends of them English Make; four Ditto, marked I. M. C. Maker's Name T. R; one Ditto, marked T. C. E, Makers Name, P. V. D. one marked W. T. A. six Ditto, marked B. T. S. Maker's Name P. V. D. one Ditto, marked W. B. S. one green Purse, one whole Gold Ring, and two broken Ones, one Silver Marrow Spoon; some Lawn, Cambrick and Walendorps, with 17 Shifts, and several Aprons and Handkerchiefs. It is hoped, that all well inclined People, will stop any of the above Articles that may be offered to Sale in this or the neighbouring Provinces.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.

Captain Smith, from Jamaica, spoke with Captain William Hamilton, off of Cape Henry, on the third Instant, bound into Maryland from London; who told him, he had then been out five Weeks, and that War was not declar'd when he sail'd, but that it was daily expected.

And by Captain Moore there is Advice, that they were in Expectation of hearing of a Declaration of War at Bristol by every Post from London; that they were fitting out a Number of Privateers there; and gave Three Pounds Bounty Money for all able bodied Seamen, that were willing to go on board any of his Majesty's Ships of War.

By Captain Morrill there is an Account of the safe Arrival of Captain Knox at Barbados from this Place.

We hear that near 60 Waggons laden with Forage for the Army, have been dispatched from this City within a few Days to Wills's Creek; the Inhabitants of most of the Townships in this County having chearfully given considerable Bounties to the Waggoners, to encourage them to undertake the Journey.

We hear also that a Number of Waggons laden with Forage are likewise gone from the Counties of Lancaster and Berks.

Since our last an Officer, and a Number of Matrosses, arriv'd here from New-York, on their Way to the Camp at Wills's Creek.

To-morrow the GENERAL ASSEMBLY of this Province meets here.

We hear that the greatest Part of the Tickets for the First Class of the ACADEMY LOTTERY are sold off; and that the Managers will be able to proceed with the Drawing of it by the Time fix'd in the Scheme.

Thursday, the 19th Instant, being the Day appointed for a General Fast throughout this Province, our next Gazette will be published on Friday.

RUN away, on Sunday, the 8th instant, from the subscriber, an English servant man, named Richard Johnston, about 30 years of age, near 6 feet high, strait and well-set, has a sour down look, short black hair, and is slow of Speech: Took with him two new ozenbrigs shirts, a striped cotton jacket and breeches, old checked and ozenbrigs trowsers, bearskin jacket, lined with shaloon of the same colour, a striped linsey jacket, with brass buttons, grey worsted ribb'd stockings, a pair of shoes, and an old hat. Whoever takes up and secures said servant, so that his master may have him again, shall have Twenty Shillings reward, and reasonable charges, paid by ¶ SAMUEL HAZARD.

Lancaster, June 3, 1755.

FOUR PISTOLES Reward.

RUN away last night, from John Wright, at his ferry, on the west side of Susquehanna river, an English servant man, named Henry Cole, about 23 years of age, has a down-look, short black hair, walks with his knees a little bending out, has a large scar on one of his heels just above the shoe, bends forward, and has a rocking walk: He has with him a homespun ash colour'd cloth jacket, the fore-parts lined with striped black and white linsey, the stripes run across the garment, the back of the jacket is lined with tow linen, an old blue pea jacket, with soal-leather buttons, two homespun shirts, new coarse trowsers, blackish yarn stockings, good shoes, and an half-worn felt hat. He is used to the sea, and all masters of vessels are desired to apprehend him. Whoever secures said servant in any goal in North-America, so that his master may have him again, shall receive Four Pistoles reward, besides reasonable charges, from JOHN WRIGHT.

N. B. 'Tis thought he designs to cross Delaware, near Philadelphia, and go to the cedar swamps in the Jerseys, and from thence to New-York, in order to ship himself for England.

The PENNSYLVANIA GAZETTE.

Containing the Freſheſt Advices, Foreign and Domeſtick.

From the GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE for March, 1755.

Some Account of Macdaniel, Berry, Egan, Salmon and Blee, the Proſecutors and Witneſſes againſt Kelly and Ellis, two Felons, now in Maidſtone Goal.

THESE Wretches were aſſociated in the Execution of a Species of Villainy ſo extraordinary, that though it has all the Aggravation of Murder, it is doubtful whether it is included in any of our Penal Laws. One of them was to ſeduce two Perſons into a Robbery on the Highway, in which, to prevent Suſpicion, he was to be an Accomplice; another of them was to be the Perſon robbed; a Third was to buy the ſtolen Goods of the Thieves; a Fourth was to ſeize them as an Officer; and the Fifth was to join the Reſt in the Proſecution: He that had aſſiſted to commit the Robbery was to eſcape, the others were to be hanged, and the Gang were to ſhare the Reward. If it happened by any Accident that their Friend was taken up by the Direction of thoſe with whom he had committed the Robbery, then he who had been robbed was not to appear, and they were to ſuffer all the Priſoners to be diſcharged for want of Proſecution, for the Sake of preſerving their Aſſociate, to make another Attempt which might have more Succeſs. Of theſe Wretches, and of the Projection, Progreſs, and Execution of the Scheme which has been lately diſcovered, a particular Account ſhould be tranſmitted to Poſterity, as a ſingular Inſtance of the Perverſion of human Laws, and the aſtoniſhing Degradation of human Nature by habitual Wickedneſs.

Macdaniel had kept an Alehouſe in Scroop's Court Holborn, and afterwards became a Thief-taker, and went into Lodgings at the Houſe of one Holewright in the ſame Place. Berry was alſo a Thief-taker, and lived in the George Yard, at the Bottom of Hatton Garden: Blee was his Servant. Egan was a Shoemaker in Drury Lane; and Salmon a Breeches-maker in Shoe Lane; all Perſons of infamous Characters, the Sons of Berry and Salmon being Pickpockets, and belonging to ſeveral Gangs, out of which the Fathers were to ſelect ſome for the Gallows when they wanted Money.

Berry was the Head of the Gang, and chief Manager. In July laſt, the Money which they had got by a fraudulent Conviction of a Man, who was hanged for a Fact he did not commit, being ſpent, Berry ſent for Macdaniel, and after ſome Converence they called in Blee, and told him that Money fell ſhort, and that he muſt look out for two Perſons, with whom he might aſſociate and commit a Robbery. Blee at firſt refuſed, and ſaid, that their laſt Project had been ſo bad, that he did not chuſe to be concerned any more. He was then threatned, that if he did not it ſhould be the worſe for him; and Blee knowing that his Life was already in Berry's Power, at laſt conſented.

He went ſeveral Days and loitered about the Fields near Sir John Oldcaſtle's and Blackmary's Hole, in order to pick up two Lads that were fit for the Purpoſe, the Reſt of the Gang being generally either in ſome of the adjacent Fields, or in a Publick Houſe.

On the 15th of July they aſſembled at Sir John Oldcaſtle's, and in an Arbour in the Garden they ſettled the Particulars of the Robbery, as to Place and Time, and agreed that it ſhould be done near Deptford, becauſe they would then be entitled to a Reward of 20 l. which was given by the Inhabitants of Eaſt Greenwich, beſides the other Rewards for apprehending Robbers within that Diſtance of London. When they returned to Town from theſe Conſultations, they were always very careful not to be ſeen together in the Streets, and therefore parted at the Door of the Houſe where the Council had been held.

At a ſubſequent Meeting at the Bell, in Holborn, it was further agreed, that Salmon, the Breeches-maker, ſhould be the Perſon to be robbed; that he ſhould make two Pair of Breeches for that Purpoſe, and mark them under the Pocket with a particular Mark. They agreed too that they ſhould be wrapped in a particular Handkerchief, and Salmon engaged to have one of his marked with an Oilet-hole at each Corner; then they agreed that it would not be amiſs to have a Tobacco-box, and Macdaniel having a very remarkable One gave it to Salmon, that he might be robbed of that among other Things; he alſo produced a Pocket-piece, which Egan engaged to mark with an Iron that he uſed to ſtamp Shoes with: But as yet they had not been able to find two Perſons with whom Blee might commit the Fact.

The next Morning, therefore, Berry gave him Three Pence, and ſent him to look about the Fleet Market. Here he found Kelly and Ellis, of whom he had ſome Knowledge; one was about 19, and the other about 20: Ellis was a Chimney-ſweeper; but they were both idle Fellows, and had been uſed to pick Pockets. Blee joined them, and after talking of indifferent Matters, treated them with ſome Gin, and left them. When he reported this to Berry, Berry gave him Three Pence more, and ordered him to have ſome Talk with them, and tell them that a Parcel of Linen was to be had near Deptford, if they would make the Attempt.

Blee did as he was directed, and the Lads conſented to his Propoſal. The next Day, at a Meeting in an Alehouſe in Plumbtree Court, near Holborn, the Reſt of the Gang were acquainted with the Progreſs that Blee had made. He was ordered ſtill to keep them Company, and received ſometimes Three Pence, and ſometimes Six-Pence, from Berry, to treat them with Gin and Beer. However, after ſeveral Days had paſſed, whether they ſuſpected Blee of pretending to have found out two Aſſociates merely to get ſome Money to ſpend on himſelf, or whether they wanted to anticipate the Pleaſure of their Succeſs by a Sight of the Victims, Blee found it neceſſary to contrive that they ſhould ſee the Lads; he went, therefore, with them into the Fleet Market, and ſeing Kelly and Ellis on a Pea Cart, he joined them in the Sight of Egan and Berry, who were at a ſmall Diſtance, and after talking a ſhort Time with them, gave each an Half Penny for ſome Gin, and returned to the Rendezvous.

He aſked Egan and Berry what they thought of them; and they, who had ſurveyed them only as a Butcher does a Steer, to know whether he is fit for Slaughter, reply'd, By G---d they are two pretty Lads, they'll do very well.

Blee contrived that they ſhould be afterwards ſeen again by the Gang in the Artillery Ground, and Berry again declared they would do; for that he had hanged leſs than they, and mentioned March and Newman, for whom they had received the Reward ſome Time before. Macdaniel was alſo of the ſame Opinion, and ſaid, he had hanged leſs Boys than they at Kingſton.

Blee ſtill continued to keep the poor Wretches Company, who had been thus marked for Deſtruction, treating them with Gin at a Penny Expence, and ſometimes procuring them a Lodging for Two Pence. At Length a Day was fixed for the Expedition, but the whole Project was in the utmoſt Danger of miſcarrying, by Ellis's having been detected in picking Pockets; however the Mob was content to duck and diſmiſs him, and Blee following him, till by Degrees he was left by the Crowd, conſoled him for his Misfortune, and gave him Three Half Pence to get ſomething hot.

As Delays were dangerous, it was then agreed that the Robbery ſhould be committed on the next Day, Friday; but upon Reflection Friday was thought a bad Day, becauſe, if they ſhould be taken on the Saturday, they might then lie in the Watch-houſe near London all Sunday, and engage Somebody to apprehend Blee their Aſſociate, which would make it impoſſible for the Proſecutor to appear. It is indeed ſtrange that Blee ſhould thus put his Life in the Hands of thoſe whom he knew to ſubſiſt by Murder, and who would encreaſe their Gain, by giving him up, and convicting him with the Reſt; for though he might hope they would be deterred from this Act of gainful Treachery by the Dread of his diſcloſing their Secret, yet it was probable his Story would be diſregarded, as it would be only the Charge of a Thief againſt Thief-takers, who are always repreſented as acting from no Motive but hope of Gain, and charged by almoſt every Wretch whom they deſtroy with ſwearing Facts againſt them which they never committed. He was indeed a uſeful Member of their Community, and might therefore more reaſonably hope to be ſpared for further Service.

The Day, however, was at length fixed to be Monday: Blee was ſent to them in the Morning, and Berry gave him a Crown, as he ſaid, to make a Flaſh with to the Boys; to pull it out all at once, and ſay he made that laſt Night. Berry alſo gave Salmon Two Shillings and Six Pence, to be robbed of with the Reſt of the Things.

About Nine in the Morning Blee went to the Lads, having appointed the Reſt of his Gang to go and wait at the Bell Inn in the Borough, where he promiſed to call and drink a Glaſs of Gin, as a ſure Sign that he was going with them to Deptford.

Blee firſt carried his Victims to an Ale-houſe in Little-Britain, where he gave them Beer, and Bread and Cheeſe, and then proceeded to the Borough, in their Way to Deptford, and called at the Bell as he had appointed, and gave each of the Lads an Half Penny worth of Gin. Berry and Salmon were ſitting in the Room, and Kelly knowing Berry was affrighted. When he came away he ſaid to Blee, There is that Thief-catching Son of a B----h, your old Maſter. Blee replied, never mind that, I do not belong to him now.

The Signal having been now given to Salmon, who was to be in the Way to be robbed, Blee went with the Lads into the Borough Market, and bought a Breaſt of Lamb, which they got fried for their Dinner at the Black Spread Eagle in Kent-ſtreet. Here Blee, the better to fit them for his Purpoſe, made them almoſt drunk, and then ſet out with them for Deptford: But as it was now ſcarce One a Clock, and as their Buſineſs could not be done till it was dark, they went to ſleep in the Fields. The poor Lads ſlept ſoundly, but Blee was buſied in the Execution of his Project, and wanted only to paſs the Time till it could be executed; when the Evening came he awaked his Companions, and they all got to Deptford about an Hour before it was dark.

At Deptford, Blee conducted them to the Sign of the Ship, an Houſe that Berry and Salmon had appointed to come to. After they had been there ſome Time, Salmon came, and, pretending to be drunk, leaned againſt the Dreſſer, and began to talk of going to London. Berry ſoon after went by the Window, and beckoned Blee, who went to him, and was ordered to be ſure to follow Salmon with the Lads when he went out.

About Duſk, Salmon went out, and Blee telling the Lads they had better take a Walk till it was Time to ſteal the Linen, led them to the four Mile Stone, where it had been agreed Salmon ſhould ſtop, and wait till they came up. Blee† ſaw him at a Diſtance, and ſaid, There is the old Breeches-maker, (for he was known by Sight to all of them, and Kelly had picked Pockets with his Son) he is drunk, let us rob him. The Lads readily fell into the Snare. Kelly went up to Salmon, and aſked him what he had got under his Arm. Salmon, who did not wait for any Violence or Threat, immediately replied, Gentlemen, take what I have, but do not uſe me ill; and though no Demand had yet been made of his Money, nor any Weapon produced, he immediately gave Blee his Bundle, containing the two Pair of Breeches in the marked Handkerchief, and Blee gave it to Kelly, ſaying, What Money have you got? Salmon took the Hint, and ſaid to Kelly, What Money I have is in a Tobacco-box, in my Waiſtcoat Pocket. Kelly thus invited, put his Hand into the Pocket, and took out the Tobacco-box, with a Claſp-knife and Fork, and then all of them made off as faſt as they could for London, without thinking any more of the Linen.

Blee, by Berry's Orders, had paid the Lodging Money at a Houſe in Kent-ſtreet, to enſure the Return of the Lads thither at Night; to this Houſe at about Eleven a Clock they came, and, having lodged there all Night, went again to the Spread Eagle the next Morning. Blee, under Pretence of getting ſomething for Breakfaſt, went to the White Bear, in the ſame Street, where Berry had appointed to meet him with Egan, who was to buy the Breeches: Here he found Berry, Egan, and Salmon, and when he had informed them where he had fix'd the Lads, Egan went away to the Houſe, and ſat down by them. Soon after Blee returned with ſome Lamb's Liver, and, after he had looked at Egan, he whiſper'd the Lads that he had ſome Knowledge of him: That Man, ſays he, deals in Rag Fair, a Thouſand to One but he'll buy the Breeches, let us aſk him; they conſented, and Blee addreſſing Egan as a Perſon not known to him at all, ſaid, Maſter will you buy ſome Leather Breeches? Egan aſk'd to ſee them, and having agreed to give Five Shillings for them, he bound the Bargain with One Shilling, and ſaid, he would return in an Hour with the Reſt of the Money: However, he did not go out directly, for it was contrived that he ſhould get the Tobacco-box: With this View, Blee aſk'd him to ſit down and eat ſome of the Liver and Bacon; to which he agreed, and after Breakfaſt he called for an Half Penny worth of Tobacco; when it was brought, he felt in his Pockets, and ſaid, Bleſs me, I do not know what I ſhall do--- I have loſt my Tobacco-box. This was a Signal to Blee, who immediately whiſper'd Kelly,------Let us ſell him the Box?----Kelly at firſt refuſed, becauſe it was ſo remarkable, but at laſt produced it, and Egan having bought it for a Quart of Two Penny, went again to Berry and Salmon. Blee ſoon after went out, under Pretence of getting himſelf ſhaved, but left his Great Coat as a Pledge of his Return: Having acquainted his Aſſociates that all was ready, he once more returned, and told the Lads the Barber was buſy, and that he muſt go again in a few Minutes; he then ſhrugged up his Shoulders, and ſaid, he thought he miſſed his Great Coat, ſo putting it on again, he went away, and left the Boys to Macdaniel, who had been diſpatched to ſeize them, and was now at Hand.

Blee made the beſt of his Way into the City, and the next Day went to Uxbridge.

Egan, who was expected by the poor Wretches, with the Remainder of his Purchaſe-money for the Breeches, ſoon after enter'd the Room where they were ſitting; he took Charge of his Bundle, but before he had paid the Reſt of the Money, Macdaniel came in. This Fellow, ſo far from being touched with Remorſe or Pity, ſeized the Wretches whom he had drawn into his Snare with Cruelty and Inſult, Come out you black guard Dogs, ſaid he, come out, and immediately ſeiz'd Kelly by the Collar. An honeſt Drummer, who happened to be quarter'd at the Houſe, was offended at the Brutality of his Behaviour, and aſked him ſternly, why he abuſed the Lad? He replied, he had a Warrant againſt him for a Robbery; nay then, ſaid the Drummer, I muſt not aſſiſt him, but you. Macdaniel pulled a Rope out of his Pocket, and tied them together by the Hands, then ſent the Drummer for Salmon, who was waiting at another Houſe in the Neighbourhood with Berry. When the Drummer and Salmon return'd, Macdaniel queſtioned Egan what he had got in his Bundle; and Egan ſurlily anſwered, What is that to you, whatever it is it is mine, for I have juſt bought it. Macdaniel, however, inſiſted upon ſeeing it, and upon its being opened took out the Breeches, taking Notice of the Marks, and that the Handkerchief had an Oilet-hole in each Corner; both were immediately claimed by Salmon. The Priſoners were then ſearched, and a Knife and Fork, with the Pocket-piece that had been marked with the Shomaker's Tool, were found upon them.

They then ſet out to go before a Juſtice of Peace at Greenwich, and the Gang being provident of their Money, and willing to receive the Reward with as little Drawback as poſſible, urged the poor Fellows to confeſs the Fact, that they might ſave the Expence of proving it at the Trial. Macdaniel promiſed, that if they would confeſs, he would do all in his Power for them, that he would immediately untie them, and that they ſhould go to Greenwich by Water.

No Confeſſion, however, was made, and after an Examination, they were committed to Maidſtone Goal.

At the next Aſſizes they were indicted for the Robbery, and Salmon, Egan, and Macdaniel, attended to prove it, and Berry alſo went down that he might ſecure his Share of the Reward.

But it happened that Kelly and Ellis having told the Conſtable, who attended them from Greenwich to Maidſtone, that one Blee was concerned with them; he reported this Particular, at his Return, to Mr. Cox, the Chief Conſtable of the Lower Half Hundred of Blackheath. Mr. Cox hearing afterwards that the Priſoners were taken by Macdaniel, and that Blee, their Accomplice, was Macdaniel's Companion, began to ſuſpect ſome Knavery: He was therefore very aſſiduous to apprehend Blee, and at length ſucceeded.

As ſoon as he was taken, he was put into a Boat, and carried to Greenwich, where he made a full Diſcovery of the whole Scheme, and ſigned an Information.

This happened about the ſame Time that Berry, Salmon, Macdaniel, and Egan, were gone to Maidſtone, ſo that they knew nothing of the Matter. Mr. Cox immediately obtained a Warrant againſt them, and, without diſcovering that he had Blee in Cuſtody, went down to attend the Trial of Kelly and Ellis at Maidſtone, with the Warrant againſt the Proſecutors in his Pocket.

When he came into Court, Salmon was giving Evidence, and he waited till Egan and Macdaniel had alſo given theirs.

Salmon ſwore, that he was robbed of the Breeches, Handkerchief, Tobacco-box, Pocket-piece, Two Shillings and Sixpence in Silver, and a Guinea in Gold, his Property; but the Pocket-piece and Tobacco-box were Macdaniel's, and Two Shillings and Six Pence, which was all the Money taken from him, was given by Berry, only that he might be robbed of it.

Egan, the Shoemaker, ſwore, that he was a Dealer in old Clothes, and that going one Morning to the Lock Hoſpital in Kent-ſtreet, to ſee if any were to be bought there, the People happened not to be up, and therefore he went into a publick Houſe, where he ſaw the Priſoner, and agreed for the Breeches and Tobacco-box; that upon examining the Breeches, he knew they belong'd to Salmon, by the Mark, Salmon having work'd for him many Years; that he went out under Pretence of getting the Reſt of the Money, and happened to meet Macdaniel, whom he knew to be an Officer, and who, upon hearing the Story, went back with him, and ſecured the Lads.

Macdaniel confirmed this Evidence, but no Account was given how Salmon came to be in Company with Macdaniel that Morning near the Place were the Lads were taken up, nor was any Queſtion aſked about it; however, the Priſoners were convicted, and the Conſpirators exulted in the Anticipation of their Reward.

But juſt at this Criſis Mr. Cox, who had kept his Eye upon them, cauſed them all to be apprehended, and the next Moment they found themſelves involved in the ſame Calamity which they had rejoiced to bring upon others.

They were now ſeized with Conſternation and Terror; but being interrogated if they knew Blee, abſolutely denied they had ever ſeen him, which they perſiſted in, though they were confronted with him. However, the next Day each intreated to be made an Evidence, and offered to make large Diſcoveries, particularly charging one Ralph Mitchell, another Thief-catcher, who was applied to to execute the Warrant againſt Blee, but refuſed to act. This Offer confirmed their Guilt, but was not accepted, becauſe Blee's

Teſtimony

† Blee pretended at the Trial, that the firſt Propoſal to rob Salmon was made by Kelly, but this is in the higheſt Degree improbable, becauſe Kelly had ſomething elſe in View, the Stealing ſome Linen; beſides, Blee was imployed merely to make the Propoſal, and with this View all the previous Steps were taken.

Teſtimony was ſufficient to convict them all. From Maidſtone they were brought to London, and try'd Laſt Seſſions at the Old-Bailey, as Acceſſaries to the Robbery of Salmon before the Fact. The Jury found all the Facts charged in the Indictment, but it being doubtful whether they were within the 4th and 5th of Philip and Mary, and the 3d and 4th of William and Mary, they pray'd the Aſſiſtance of the Court, and made their Verdict ſpecial.

In the London Magazine Mention is made, that theſe Villains have receiv'd 1720 l. from the Treaſury, for Perſons taken by, and convicted on, their Evidence, at the Old-Bailey only; and that they have enſnar'd, there and elſewhere, upwards of 70 Men, &c.

PARIS A-LA-MAIN, April 14.

M. de Machault, Keeper of the Seals of France, and Secretary of State, is dangerouſly ill with a Fiſtula. The Firſt Preſident acquainted the Parliament laſt Tueſday with the King's Anſwer, which he received the Evening before, and is to the following Purpoſe: "I have examined the Pieces you delivered me: The Archbiſhop of Paris ſhould have forbid the Appeal brought in by my Attorney General againſt Cerveau, and the Affair ſhould have been carried to the Great Chamber, according to antient Cuſtom; I cannot approve of its being brought before all the Chambers aſſembled. The Affair of St. Medard being a private Concern, there is nothing more to be done in it, but to find out the Cuſtoms of the Pariſh, and conform to them. I am extremely ſurprized at the irregular and unuſual Method taken by my Parliament, to force the Curates of Paris to give an Account of the private Converſation which the Archbiſhop held with them. I quite diſapprove of this Behaviour, which only tends to leſſen the Subordination that is due from the Curates to the Archbiſhop, and to increaſe the preſent Troubles. As to the Reſt, let my Parliament conſtantly keep in Mind the Principles of Peace, Moderation, and Prudence, which I have already often charged you to recommend to them, and conſider, that whenever they depart from thoſe Principles, though ever ſo little, they do not conform to the Intention of my Declaration."

Edinburgh, April 1. The Magiſtrates of Queensferry have promiſed and engaged, to all the married Sailors in that Town and Neighbourhood, who ſhall voluntarily enter themſelves before the Firſt Day of May for his Majeſty's Service, on board his Navy, to cauſe their Town Treaſurer to advance Forty-eight Shillings Sterling yearly, and proportionally to their Wives or Families, while they continue in the Service, to be repaid by ſuch Sailors when they get their Pay. And

The Magiſtrates of Burnt-Iſland, in order to promote the ſpeedy Supply of Seamen for manning his Majeſty's Fleet upon this urgent Occaſion, have unanimouſly agreed to give Twenty Shillings Sterling, over and above his Majeſty's Bounty, to all able-bodied Seamen in that Town and Liberties, who ſhall voluntarily enter to ſerve on board the Fleet. And for the better Encouragement of Seamen, the Magiſtrates and Council have alſo engaged, that the Wives and Families of ſuch Seamen as voluntarily enter as above, ſhall have Credit and Advances of Money from the Town and other publick Boxes for their Subſiſtance, in the ſame Manner as during the laſt War.

The Magiſtrates and Town Council of the Burgh of Montroſe, taking into their Conſideration the great Demand that there is at preſent for Seamen to ſerve on board his Majeſty's Fleet; and that it is the Duty of all his Majeſty's good Subjects to contribute their utmoſt Endeavour for procuring a ſpeedy Supply of ſuch Seamen, have promiſed a Bounty of Thirty Shillings Sterling to every able-bodied Seaman, and Twenty Shillings to every ordinary Seaman, (over and above his Majeſty's Bounty Money) that ſhall appear before any of the Magiſtrates of this Burgh, and voluntarily inliſt themſelves to ſerve his Majeſty on board the Fleet. The ſaid Bounty to be paid immediately by the Town Treaſurer, and to continue in Force till the 20th Day of April next, unleſs publick Notice ſhall be given before that Time, that the Call for Mariners for manning the Fleet is ceaſed. Signed by Order and Appointment of the Council at Montroſe, the 27th Day of March, 1755, by the Proveſt.

Paragraph of a Letter from Angus, March 26.

"For ſome Days paſt we have had a Man of War's Tender upon our Coaſt, ſaid to have come to carry up the Earl of Northeſk's Baggage to London from his Houſe in this County, which was no ſooner known here, than above 60 Men, all able Sailors, voluntarily entered themſelves to ſerve on board the Orford, a 70 Gun Ship, under his Lordſhip's Command."

Birmingham, April 7. Saturday Se'nnight a moſt cruel Murder was committed near Lord Guernſey's, at Great Packington, by Samuel Hawkesford, a Farmer, on Eleanor Keatley, about twenty Years of Age, (Daughter to his late Wife by a former Huſband.) He us'd to beat her frequently in a cruel Manner, and often ſwear he would kill her. On Saturday he ſent her with a Servant Girl to work in the Field, but being unable to work, ſhe went to a Neighbour's Houſe. Hawkesford coming into the Field, and not finding her at Work, aſked the Servant Girl where his Daughter was, and ſwore he would make her work, or would kill her; and going to the Houſe where ſhe was, dragg'd her to the Field, kicking and beating her all the Way; after which he ſent the Servant Home and, though his Daughter was unable to ſtand, he fetch'd a great Stick out of a Hedge, and beat her till one of her Rib-Bones towards her Back ſtruck into her Lungs, which kill'd her immediately; ſhe bled much at the Mouth, one Shoulder was out, her Head was broke in ſeveral Places, and her whole Body was a perfect Jelly. He is committed to Warwick Goal.

LONDON.

March 8. Was held a General Court of the Free Britiſh Fiſhery, when a State of the Company's Affairs was laid before the Proprietors; and it appear'd by an Account read in Council, that the Company had in Caſh between 7 and 8000 l. to begin their Fiſhery for the preſent Year, without a Call; that the Parliament had rendered the Company's Intereſt of 3 per Cent. upon the real Capital, certain for the future; and had agreed, that what now remained due ſhould be paid up to the firſt Day of October laſt: That the Government, as well thoſe that had the Direction of the Revenue, as thoſe who preſided over Naval Affairs, had aſſured the Members of the Council of their Protection and Support; and, as an earneſt of their good Intention, had granted Protections for more than 300 Sailors from Scotland, not to England only, but back again to their own Country, in Caſe of Non-employment. On this Occaſion Mr. Bethel, the Preſident, took Occaſion to declare, that he had declined his own private Buſineſs, that he might be more at Leiſure to attend the Company's Service; and Captain Collet, after a moſt pathetick Speech, in Anſwer to ſome Cavils thrown out by a few, who appeared to be no Friends to the Undertaking, ſaid, that for his own Part, he had been hitherto lukewarm in the Affair, owing to the Diviſions and Animoſities that had prevailed among the Members of former Councils, and the Diſlike he had to their Management; but now he ſaw every Member willing to co-operate with him, he would not only apply Four Hours a Day in the Company's Service, but Eight, if it were neceſſary, and even Eighteen, if that could contribute to ſecure Succeſs; and he hoped and believed, from the good Diſpoſition of the Government to encourage and protect the Company; from the hearty Zeal of the Council to rectify all former Miſtakes, and remove all negligent or ſuſpicious Servants; and from his own Experience and Knowledge in Sea Affairs, that unleſs unforeſeen Diſaſters at Sea prevented, inſtead of a ſecond Call upon the Proprietors, he could aſſure a Dividend.

March 12. Edward Hunſdon, alias Long Ned, was, after a ſtout Reſiſtance, taken and committed to Newgate. This Fellow has long reigned the Terror of the Inhabitants in and about Eaſt-Smithfield, following no other Buſineſs but, like Macdaniel and others, tempting young Fellows to commit Robberies, and then ſwearing againſt them for the ſake of the Reward, on whoſe Evidence many have been executed.

March 29. The Linen Cloth ſtamp'd in Scotland for Sale, from November 1, 1753, to November 1, 1754, amounted to 8,914,369 Yards, which was valued at 506,816 l. 8s.

April 8. By a Letter from Edinburgh we are informed, that upon the Report of ſeveral Perſons from France being taken in Scotland, ſtrict Enquiry has been made, and it appears to be altogether without Foundation. The ſame Letter informs us that the Fortifications at Arderſeir Point are going on with great Expedition.

April 10. Laſt Saturday a great Number of Recruits for the Royal Regiment of Artiliery, arrived at Woolwich from Scotland.

We learn from Malden in Eſſex, that on the 7th Inſtant the Bailiff, Aldermen, and Capital Burgeſſes of that Borough, aſſembled at their General Quarter Seſſion, and unanimouſly agreed to give a Reward of Two Guineas to every able-bodied Seaman, who ſhall, on or before the 30th of this Month, come before the Bailiff, and voluntarily enter himſelf to ſerve in the Royal Navy; which is to be paid by the Chamberlain of the ſaid Borough, over and above the Reward promiſed by his Majeſty.

April 12. A Copy of the Special Verdict againſt Macdaniel, Salmon, Egan, and Berry, has been ſent to all the Judges, and it is ſaid they will meet the enſuing Term to ſettle the Sentence.

April 15. The Duke of Penthievre is actually arrived at Turin, where, it is ſaid, he makes no Scruple of declaring that he has ſucceeded in his Negotiation, and laid the Foundation of a new General Alliance in Italy.

They write from Vienna, that a Train of Artillery has Orders to move towards Croatia; that her Imperial Majeſty is far advanced in her Pregnancy; and that the Court is very attentive to a Negotiation that is on the Carpet at Madrid.

April 17. It is reported, that the Right Honourable Lord Tyrawly will be appointed Commander in Chief of all his Majeſty's Forces in Ireland; and that the Earl of Rothes will be Commander in Chief in Scotland.

BOSTON, June 9.

Extract of a private Letter, by one of the laſt Ships from London, dated the 14th of April, 1755.

------"The Reaſon of the expeditious Armament here, it is ſaid our Court was moved to, in Revenge of a helliſh Plot diſcovered at the Court of France by Lord Al------le before he died. The Plot was no leſs than a Deſign of invading Great Britain and Ireland in ſeveral Places as near the ſame Time as poſſible: And to deſtroy with Fire and Sword, wherever they came; and to burn our Fleet that were laid up in our Harbours.

When his Lordſhip's Diſcovery was known at Paris, it is ſaid he was ſoon after ſeized with his Illneſs, but moſt providentially (before he was taken ſick) he had diſpatched a Courier to our Court with his Information. With how much Deteſtation ought every Subject of Great-Britain, and every honeſt Man of all other Nations, to look upon ſuch a treacherous, perfidious and Blood-thirſty People!

The Gun-powder Plot was nothing to this, had Providence permitted them to put it in Execution."

This Morning ſeveral Companies of his Excellency's Regiment marched from this Town for Providence, where they are to take Shipping for New York, &c.

By a Veſſel that arrived here in 11 Days from Halifax, on Saturday laſt, we have Advice, that juſt before ſhe left that Place, a Veſſel came in from Louiſburg, the Maſter of which informed, that no Forces had arrived there from France this Year:----That they were in want of Proviſions, and wonder'd greatly why no Engliſh Veſſels had been there for a long Time:---That they had no Advice of the Loſs of their Schooner laden with Proviſions, &c. bound to St. John's, as mentioned in this Paper ſome Weeks ago, about which they were under great Concern: And that it was plain, that 21 Days ago they had no Advice of our Armaments againſt their Countrymen in Nova-Scotia.

By Letters from Rhode-Iſland we are inform'd, that the Collector of his Majeſty's Cuſtoms for the Port of Newport, having had Advice, that a large French Schooner was hovering upon that Coaſt, endeavouring to get Prattick, ſent out a Veſſel in queſt of her, which found her in a Creek or Cove, on the Back of Cape Cod, in Company with a Sloop belonging to New-York. She came from Porto Prince, on Hiſpaniola, and had 150 Hogſheads of Melaſſes on board, with which ſhe was to purchaſe a Load of Proviſion, (eſpecially Flour) of which 'tis ſaid the French are in great Want in the Weſt-Indies. The Yorker had taken 50 Hogſheads of Melaſſes on board, for which, and the Remainder of the Cargo, Monſieur was to have Flour from New-York; but the Rhode-Iſland Man came upon them ſo abruptly, that he utterly made void the Bargain, and carried both the Veſſels into Newport laſt Friday Morning.

On the 30th paſt, the Houſe of Capt. David Clap, of Scituate, was ſtruck by Lightning, and one End of it very much ſhattered from Top to Bottom, ſome Pewter in the Houſe melted, and other Things damaged. Five Hogs lying down together near the Houſe, three of them were killed, but the other two not hurt.

NEW-YORK, June 16.

By a Letter from Albany, dated the 7th Inſtant, we learn, that on the Monday before, as Johan Jury Primmer, with his three Sons, were going to plow in a Field near their Dwelling-houſe, at Hoſſack, they were fired upon by a Party of Indians, who killed and ſcalped the eldeſt Son, and carried the two youngeſt into Captivity; the Father, with the greateſt Difficulty, eſcaping the ſame Fate.

Tueſday and Thurſday laſt, the New-Jerſey Provincial Forces paſſed by here for Albany; and

On Thurſday 200 Men, from Major General Pepperrell's Regiment, embarked on board four Sloops for the ſame Place.

The ſame Day, Capt. Miller, in the Brigantine Maria, of this Port, arrived here from London, after a tedious Paſſage, but has brought nothing ſo late as has been already inſerted: On the 21ſt of May, in Lat. 28, he ſpoke with the Norfolk Indiaman, Capt. Bonham, who informed him, that he left Madraſs about the Middle of January, when the Affairs of the Engliſh in that Part of the World, were in a good Situation; and that in caſe the French ſhould attack any of the Company's Settlements, they would meet with a vigorous Repulſe, as there was a very potent Fleet in the Indies.

Extract of a Letter from Providence, in New-England, dated June 3, 1755.

---"We have now in this Harbour ſixteen Sail of Veſſels waiting to tranſport Governor Shirley's Regiment to Albany, which Regiment is to ſet out in Companies the 9th Inſtant by Land from Boſton to this Place, for Embarkation. Our three Companies will alſo come about the ſame Time.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.

Sunday laſt an Expreſs arriv'd here from Wills's Creek, who brought Advice, that General BRADDOCK, with the laſt Diviſion of the Forces, march'd on Tueſday, the Tenth Inſtant, for the Little Meadows, where he will be join'd by the reſt of the Army, and then proceed to the Ohio: And that he has left Colonel INNES Governor of Fort Cumberland, with a ſufficient Garriſon for the Defence of it, and the Magazine of Proviſions, Forage and Stores, that are left there.

We hear that ſeveral Bodies of French Troops have lately been ſeen paſſing in Battoes on Lake Ontario, in their Way, as is ſuppoſed, to the Ohio.

Captain M'Clelland, from Carthagena, ſpoke with Captain Rees, of this Place, in the Windward Paſſage, about 16 Days ago, homeward bound from Jamaica: And, two or three Days after, he likewiſe ſpoke with Captain Smith, for Jamaica from this Port: All well on board both Veſſels.

By AUTHORITY.

The Royal Patent MEDICINAL SNUFF;

THIS excellent medicine operates on the head as a purgative and ſtimulator, on the ſtomach and lungs as an attenuator and diſſolvent; and on the blood and juices, as an alterative.

By its operation on the head, it cures recent lunacies, dizzineſs deafneſs, inflamed eyes and defect of ſight; breaks and carries off impoſthumations and quinſeys, enlivens the ſpirits, quickning and awaking them from indolent and lethargic ſtupor, diſperſes all growing or congregated vapours, creating intenſe pain, in any part of the head, face or gums, and the polypus in the noſe, it gradually eradicates.

By the like power on the ſtomach and lungs, it diſſolves coagulated matter, formed by bad air, diſeaſed fluids, or other caſualties, thus removing all obſtructions, it ſuddenly relieves the aſthma, catarrh and phthiſic, recovers to the ſtomach and nerves, their genial tone and action, and utterly annihilates all hiſterical diſorders.

By its efficacious, alterative, and purifying quality, it cleanſes the blood and reins from all viſcous concrete impurities, and remedies evil ſcorbutic leprous humours, and peſtilentia fevers, baniſhes all relicks of unſkilful phyſicking, and re eſtabliſhes the whole animal œconomy in all their natural functions.

Its ſingular uſe and excellence conſiſts in its being pleaſant in the taking, happy and agreeable in the operation, and morally certain in the cure. It hinders no buſineſs, eating or drinking, nor cauſing, but preventing and curing colds.

The manner of its operation is various, as the habit of the body inclines, but moſt generally by the channel of the noſe, the moſt ready and leaſt diſagreeable way of carrying off moſt conſtructions, eſpecially ſuch as affect the head; tho' often by ſtool, urine or gentle perſpiration.

That theſe remarks may have their due weight with the moſt inteligent, and the virtues of this medicine be duly attended to, any perſon may, when they require it, be waited on within the bills of mortality, on reaſonable notice, and nothing charged for medicine or attendance where the cure is not effected.

The various cures performed by this invaluable medicine, extracted from many thouſands, are inſerted in a pamphlet, the ſixth edition, and may be borrowed at the place of ſale.

To prevent counterfeits and the tricks of ſpurious ſnuff makers from Euphorbium, and ſuch like pernicious materials, the papers are ſigned by Smith and Major in black ink.

The ſnuff and ointment is ſold only by Mr. Chriſtopher Marſhall, in Cheſtnut-ſtreet, Philadelphia, and no other place in the province; and who ſhall imitate it in make, or ſells any like it, are ordered to be ſued at law without warning; where is likewiſe ſold, moſt ſorts of drugs and medicines, galenical and chymical, with moſt ſorts of advertiſed medicines, truly imported from their original ware-houſes in London, a large aſſortment of oils and colours for painting, varniſhing and japaning, crown glaſs of moſt ſorts and ſizes, dye ſtuffs, &c. wholeſale and retail.

The VANITY of PEDIGREE Ridiculed.

From the WORLD, March 6.

THE vulgar Distinction between People of Birth and People of no Birth, will probably puzzle the Criticks and Antiquarians of the Thirtieth or Fortieth Centuries, when in their judicious and laborious Researches into the Customs and Manners of these present Times, they shall have Reason to suppose, that in the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Centuries, the Island of Great-Britain was inhabited by two Sorts of People, some born, but the much greater Number unborn. The Fact will appear so incredible, that it will certainly be believed; the only Difficulty will be how to account for it; and that, as it commonly does, will engross the Attention of the Learned. The Case of Cadmus's Men will doubtless be urged as a Case in Point to prove the Possibility of the Thing; and the Truth of it will be confirmed by the Records of the University of Oxford, where it will appear, that an unborn Person, called for that Reason Terræ Filius, annually entertained that University with an Oration in the Theatre.

I therefore take with Pleasure this Opportunity of explaining and clearing up this Difficulty to my remotest Successors in the Republick of Letters, by giving them the true Meaning of the several Expressions of great Birth, noble Birth, Birth, and no Birth at all.

Great and illustrious Birth is ascertained and authenticated by a Pedigree carefully preserved in the Family, which takes at least an Hour's Time to unroll, and when unrolled, discloses twenty Intermarriges of valiant and puissant Geoffreys and Hildebrands, with as many chaste and pious Blaunches and Mauds, before the Conquest, not without here and there a Dash of the Plantagenets. But if unfortunately the insolent Worms should have devoured the Pedigree as well as the Persons of the illustrious Family, that Defect may be supplied by the authentick Records of the Herald's Office, that inestimable Repository of good Sense and useful Knowledge. If this great Birth is graced with a Peerage, so much the better; but if not, it is no great Matter; for being so solid a Good in itself, it wants no borrowed Advantages, and is unquestionably the most pleasing Sentiment that a truly generous Mind is capable of feeling.

Noble Birth implies only a Peerage in the Family. Ancestors are by no Means necessary for this Kind of Birth; the Patent is the Midwife of it, and the very first Descent is noble. The Family Arms, however modern, are dignified by the Coronet and Mantle; but the Family Livery is sometimes, for very good Reasons, laid aside.

Birth, singly, and without an Epithet, extends, I cannot positively say how far, but negatively, is where useful Arts and Industry begin. Merchants, Tradesmen, Yeomen, Farmers and Ploughmen, are not born, or at least in so mean a Way, as not to deserve that Name; and it is perhaps for that Reason, that their Mothers are said to be delivered, rather than brought to Bed of them. But Baronets, Knights, and Esquires, have the Honour of being born.

I must confess, that before I got the Key to this fashionable Language, I was a good Deal puzzled myself with the Distinction between Birth and no Birth; and having no other Guide but my own weak Reason, I mistook the Matter most grosly. I foolishly imagined that Well-born, meant born with a sound Mind in a sound Body; a healthy, strong Constitution, joined to a good Heart and a good Understanding. But I never suspected, that it could possibly mean the shrivelled, tasteless Fruit of an old genealogical Tree. I communicated my Doubts, and applied for Information to my late worthy and curious Friend, the celebrated Mrs. Kennon, whose valuable Collection of Fossils and Minerals, lately sold, sufficiently proves her Skill and Researches in the most recondite Parts of Nature. She, with that Frankness and Humanity which were natural to her, assured me, that it was all a vulgar Error, in which however the Nobility and Gentry prided themselves: But that in Truth she had never observed the Children of the Quality to be wholesomer or stronger than others, but rather the contrary; which Difference she imputed to certain Causes, which I shall not here specify. This natural, and, I dare say, to the best of her Observation, true Account, confirmed me in my former philosophical Error. But still not thoroughly satisfied with it, and thinking, that there must be something more in what was so universally valued, I determined to get some farther Information, by addressing myself to a Person of vast, immense, prodigious Birth, and descended atavis Regibus, with whom I have the Honour of being acquainted. As he expatiates willingly upon that Subject, it was very easy for me to set him a going upon it; insomuch, that upon some few Doubts, which I humbly suggested to him, he spoke to me in the following Manner:

"I believe, Mr. Fitz-Adam, you are not (for no Body is) ignorant of the Antiquity of my Family, which by authentick Records I can trace up to King Alfred, some of whose Blood runs at this Moment in my Veins; and I will not conceal from you, that I find infinite inward Comfort and Satisfaction in that Reflection. Let People of no Birth laugh as much as they please at these Notions; they are not imaginary; they are real; they are solid; and whoever is well born, is glad that he is so. A Merchant, a Tradesman, a Yeoman, a Farmer, and such Sort of People, may, perhaps, have common Honesty and vulgar Virtues; but, take my Word for it, the more refined and generous Sentiments of Honour, Courage, and Magnanimity, can only flow in ancient and noble Blood. What shall animate a Tradesman, or Mean-born Man, to any great and heroick Virtues? Shall it be the Examples of his Ancestors? He has none. Or shall it be that impure Blood, that rather stagnates than circulates in his Veins? No; antient Birth, and noble Blood, are the only true Sources of great Virtues. This Truth appears even among Brutes, who we may observe never degenerate, except in Cases of Mis-alliances with their Inferiors. Are not the Pedigrees of Horses, Cocks, Dogs, &c. carefully preserved, as the never failing Proofs of their Swiftness and Courage? I repeat it again, Birth is an inestimable Advantage, not to be adequately understood but by those who have it."

My Friend was going on, and, to say the Truth, growing dull, when I took the Liberty of interrupting him, by acknowledging, that the Cogency of his Arguments, and the Self-evidence of his Facts, had entirely removed all my Doubts, and convinced me of the unspeakable Advantages of illustrious Birth; and unfortunately I added, that my own Vanity was greatly flattered by it, in Consequence of my being lineally descended from the first Man. Upon this my Friend looked grave, and seemed rather displeased; whether from a Suspicion that I was jesting, or upon an Apprehension that I meant to out-descend him, I cannot determine; for he contented himself with saying, "That is not a necessary Consequence neither, Mr. Fitz-Adam, since I have read somewhere or other of Præ-adamites," which Opinion did not seem to me an absurd One."

Here I took my Leave of him, and went Home full of Reflections upon the astonishing Powers of Self-love, that can extract Comfort and Pleasure from such groundless, absurd, and extravagant Prejudices. In all other Respects, my Friend is neither a Fool nor a Madman, and can talk very rationally upon any rational Subject. But such is the Inconsistency both of the human Mind and the human Heart, that one must not form a general Judgment of either, from one glaring Error, or one shining Excellence.

From a late ENGLISH Paper.

To the PRINTER, &c.

SIR,

THE French have long looked with envious Eyes upon the Power and Wealth of this happy Island, and they have as long in vain endeavour'd to ruin and destroy them both; but Experience has at last taught them a more effectual Method of accomplishing it, than they were formerly acquainted with. They have, more than once, engag'd us in a War on the Continent, where we had not one Foot of Land to lose, and where it never would have been our Interest to gain it, had it been in our Power; and tho' they have, by that Means, burthen'd us with Taxes, and overloaded us with a national Debt, yet they found it impossible to compleat our Ruin, while we continued Masters of the Ocean, and enjoy'd such a free and extensive Trade.

It was from this important Consideration, and the Necessity to which they were reduc'd by the Destruction of their Fleet in the last War, that made them so desirous of a Peace, at a Time when their victorious Troops made them Masters of the Netherlands. They felt the severe Effects of their ruin'd Fleet, and they knew the Impossibility of reducing England in their impotent Situation; they, therefore, like the Ram, when full of Rage, recoil'd, with an Intent of returning with more Strength and Vigour; they enter'd into Engagements which they never intended to keep, and ever since they have been amusing us with fair and deluding Promises, which they never intended to perform. This is not mere Speculation only, for it is what we see confirm'd by sad Experience, and it leads me to enquire whether, since that Period, the French have acted with most Falshood, or with most Folly?

They no sooner saw our Fleets laid up, and our Sailors discharged, than they began to augment their own; they gave Encouragement to our Ship Carpenters and Sailors, not because they lov'd them, but because they knew that they would be of great Use and Service to them; they continued assiduous in increasing their Strength upon our Decay, protecting their own Trade, and depressing ours, 'till they thought themselves arriv'd to that Degree of Strength wherewith they might openly invade our Colonies, without the least Appearance of Justice, or Colour of Reason.

The Peace was no sooner concluded, than the French Deserters, Haircutters, Milliners, and Mantua-makers, came swarming over to England, as if they intended to People a desolate Nation. This is the Exchange we made for the Sailors which we deprived of Bread, and a sad One too in my Opinion: For I defy any Man living to prove, that any One of all that trifling Tribe, was ever useful or necessary, in the least Degree, to England, but, on the contrary, a Publick Loss, and a no less Publick Nusance. But so luxurious, so trifling, and so fond of them we became, that nothing could please our delicate and refined Taste, but those useless, insignificant, and trifling Coxcombs, I have just now mentioned. A Man without a French Servant, is a Man of neither Taste nor Consequence; and a Lady without a French Hair-Cutter, N' a point de Gout. This is what I observ'd, and my Observations are true; and if it appear that the French have dealt fairly with us, it will appear extremely stupid in us not to discover it before; and as we exchanged our useful Men for useless Trifles, we barter'd away our Wealth, our Wit, and Common-Sense.

It was with no small Pleasure and Satisfaction that the French beheld us contending for Elections, and the Ministry no less eager to obtain the Majority, than if the whole Security of the Crown and Kingdom had depended thereon; and it was equally agreeable to them, to find our Inclinations as bent upon the Tranquility of the Empire, and a King of the Romans, as if that King was to secure our Trade, and protect our Colonies. It was from these, and some more of the like Nature, that the French began to put their deep and dangerous Scheme in Execution; to take Possession of our Colonies by Degrees, and to wrest them out of our Hands by Force; to destroy our Trade and Commerce, and, consequently, our Wealth and Power; and lastly, to reduce us to the sad Necessity of losing our Liberty, and become a Province of France.

But I would ask these Gentlemen, who are so mighty Admirers of the French Nation, whether they would choose, or not, to part with their Liberties, and become the Slaves of a People who are Strangers to Freedom? If they would, they may encourage them; but if they say not, they must shew it by their Actions before I believe them. I would likewise ask those Men, who are the mighty Advocates for the Liberties of Germany and Balance of Power, whether our Troops when triumphing on the Continent, or our Fleets when triumphing on the Seas, are most likely to defend our own Kingdom, our own Colonies, and that Balance of Power they have so often pretended to struggle for.

Our Commerce is the Source of our Wealth, and our Wealth is the Source of our Strength; and it is by these two that we have so long been a Terror to France, and maintained the Liberties of Europe: If the One of these fail, the other must of Consequence; the French have found it out, and they are determined, if possible, to destroy both. This is, therefore, a Point that deserves our most serious Attention; and is certainly our Interest never to suffer the French to rival us at Sea; but augment our Naval Force to such a Degree, as may be able to ruin and demolish all their Fleets, to cut off their Communication with either East or West-Indies, and put it at once out of their Power to send Reinforcements to either; then may France range her Batallions at a Distance, and threaten mighty War, while our strong Fleets shall ride on Neptune's Back, wielding the Trident of the foaming Deep, and carry Conquest to Regions remote:

----------Thus,
Amidst a World of Waves shall stand serene
Britannia's Isle, the Ocean's stately Queen:
In vain let faithless France dare now conspire her Fall,
Her Trenches are the Sea, and Fleets her floating Wall.

Paris A-La-Main, April 14. We have received the following Account of a great Revolution in Indostan. In the Month of June, 1754, Emadalmoulook, a Descendant of the famous Nizam, formed, in Concert with the Marattes, a Design to dethrone the Grand Mogul, and began his March towards Debli. On the News of his Approach, the Emperor, who some Time before made an Excursion from his Capital, thought fit to return to it. Emadalmoulook pursued him in his Retreat, but could not overtake him. The Mogul having shut himself up in his Fortress, Emadalmoulook sent him Word, that the Marattes were not come with a Design to attempt his Life, but only with a View to make him some Propositions for the Good of the Empire, and to prevail with him to dismiss his Vizir, who was unworthy of that Post. The Emperor being pressed by the Marattes, consented, though with Reluctance, to dismiss his Vizir, and Emadalmoulook got himself appointed Successor to that prime Minister; after which the Marattes went to the Fortress, seized upon the Grand Mogul, and shut him up in a Prison. Then they immediately set at Liberty all the Princes of the Royal Family, and set one of them on the Throne, who is the Grandson of Jeandarcha, and about 40 Years old. All this was transacted without Effusion of Blood, and without any Pillaging.

LONDON.

April 8. It has been observed by a worthy and disinterested Magistrate, and indeed by many other People, that since the Villainy of the Thiefcatchers has been discovered, there have been very few Accounts in the publick Papers of Robberies or Burglaries committed in or near London, whereas before that Time the Papers were full of those Accounts: From whence he naturally concludes, that either such Robberies have been committed, and sometimes the deluded Thief taken, by the hellish Contrivance of these horrid Wretches, or that Stories of Robberies have been trumped up and published by them, in order to frighten People, and to shew the Usefulness of Thief-catchers to the Publick. This Gentleman joins his hearty Wishes to those of all honest Men, that none may escape the Punishment due to such flagrant Crimes as the Monsters of this Fraternity have been proved to be guilty of.

If what has been long said is true, that the Spaniards do not love the French,---That they are jealous of them, and have a proverbial Saying, "Peace with England, and War with all the World besides," it is reasonable to think, that they will not join the French, and make War with England at this Juncture. What Influence the Councils of an intriguing Queen Dowager and her jesuitical Priests may have, who can say? But as their now King has wise and able Ministers about him, and Things are greatly alter'd since 1739, it is thought by some Men of Knowledge and Experience, they will see their own Interest is concern'd herein; for should the French, these Invaders and Disturbers of the Rights of Mankind, succeed in their Attempts upon Virginia, and get our Tobacco Trade, which is their chief Aim, they will no Doubt make their next Attempt upon the Spanish Mines in America. The Spaniards are a grave and solemn People; but they are not blind, they know the French have dup'd them out of almost all the Island of St. Domingo, and from a very small Establishment there at first, have, by Degrees, got Possession of the best Part of that Island. Now, as the Duke of Huescar and Mr. Wall are very able Statesmen, it will, no Doubt, be their chief Point in View to prevent any further Encroachments of the French; and as a Proof hereof, it is reported as a certain Truth, that Leave has already been granted to the Catalonians, those brave and industrious People, to settle in Hispaniola, and carry on a Trade there from Barcelona and other Cities in Catalonia, which Grant, as it is thought by our ablest Traders, will not be agreeable to the French.

April 15. By a private Letter from Amsterdam we learn, that there is some Talk of a Confederacy against the piratical States of Barbary, and that a certain able Negociator is to make a Tour to the North upon that Subject.

We hear that the Companies of Invalids are to be augmented to 100 Men each, which will cost the Nation little, as they are recruited from the Out-Pensioners of Chelsea, and save the reinforcing the Garrisons, where they do Duty, from the Marching Regiments, which it was thought necessary to do in the last War.

April 17. We learn by private Letters from Warsaw, that the late Tumults in Lithuania were owing to the Speech of a Gentleman, who declared to the Assembly, that there was no other Foundation for their Discontents, except their own Violation of the Constitution, which had been attended indeed with very dreadful Consequences in most Places; but it was not, however, too late to return to that Obedience to the Laws, and to the King, which would restore the Publick Quiet, and revive the Polish Reputation. Upon this the Air rang with Liberty, and Hundreds of Sabres were drawn in an Instant.

Beſides Boxes for Contributions were not only ſet up in the uſual Places, but at the Theatres, Opera Houſes, and at the Evening Aſſemblies, that thoſe who are bleſſed with Eaſe and Opulence might not only have it in their Power, but be alſo put in Mind to relieve the Indigence of their Fellow-Creatures.

Extract of a Letter from Goſport, April 15.

"This Morning the Commiſſioners of Portſmouth Dock-Yard began paying the Artificers of the ſaid Yard ſix Months Wages.

"This Day his Majeſty's Ship Gibralter, Capt. Holwell, will ſail out of the Harbour to Spithead.

"We have a glorious Fleet at Spithead, conſiſting of 27 Sail, the chief Part capital Ships, many intirely new, and more will arrive to join them from the Eaſtward and Weſtward, as ſoon as the Wind permits, beſides ſeven Sail in Commiſſion in the Harbour, and more getting ready for that Purpoſe."

BOSTON, June 16.

On Monday laſt the two firſt Companies of his Excellency's Regiment, began to march from this Place for Providence, and two more each Day till Friday, for the ſame Place, where they are to take Shipping for New-York, &c. The above Regiment we hear conſiſts of 960 Men, excluſive of Officers.---We hear that a Serjeant of one of the Companies which marched on Wedneſday, being very warm, drank ſo much cold Water, that it immediately put an End to his Life.

By an Expreſs laſt Saturday from the Weſtward, we learn, that on Wedneſday laſt, at a Place called Charlemont, two Men were kill'd; and Captain Rice, his Son, and Grandſon, were taken Priſoners there by the Indians.

By a Letter from St. George's, at the Eaſtward, dated the 6th Inſtant, we are informed, that the Day before, two Lads (Brothers) being in a Canoe, not far from the Shore, they were fired upon by ſome Indians, and either kill'd or taken, but ſuppoſed the former, 15 Guns being diſtinctly heard to be fired off. Three other Men were in a Gondola at a ſmall Diſtance from the Canoe, who happily eſcaped the Indians, and got home.

Saturday laſt was paſſed and publiſhed here, An Act, intituled, An Act for the more effectual Prevention of Supplies of Proviſions and warlike Stores to the French, from any Parts of this Province.

NEW-HAVEN, June 14.

This Week the Provincial Troops raiſed in the Colony of Connecticut, for removing Incroachments at Crown-Point, began their March to Albany, being 1000 Men.

About 1000 Men more are raiſed in this Colony, ſome in his Majeſty's immediate Pay, and ſome in the Pay of the neighbouring Governments.

NEW-YORK, June 23.

His Excellency the Hon. JAMES DE LANCEY, Eſq; our Lieutenant Governor, has been pleaſed to appoint Mr. William Cockcroft, of this City (a Gentleman well ſkilled in military Affairs) to be Colonel of our Provincial Forces, who are to act in Conjunction with others from the neighbouring Colonies, on the preſent Expedition againſt Crown-Point, the whole to be commanded by Major General JOHNSTON.

A Letter from St. Kitts, dated June the 4th, ſays, That Governor Purcell, of Tortola, arrived there the Day before from Portſmouth, which Place he left the 22d Day of April laſt, in Company with 13 Ships of the Line, and two Admirals; but whither bound was left to the general Conjecture.

A Sloop from Barbados in 14 Days touch'd here on Tueſday laſt in her Way to New-England. By her we learn, that a Veſſel from Guernſey-Iſle, arrived at Bridgetown a few Days before ſhe ſail'd, the Captain of which reported, that to the Eaſtward of the Weſtern Iſlands, he ſaw a large Fleet of Ships ſtanding, as he thought, to the Weſtward; and not being any ways inclin'd to ſpeak with 'em, could not tell whether they were Engliſh or French.

Several Tranſport Veſſels arrived here ſince our laſt from the Eaſtward, having the Boſton, Rhode-Iſland, &c. Forces on board, and are ſince ſail'd for Albany. Others from the ſame Quarter are hourly look'd for.

"About a Week ago a French Sloop with 20 Men, 14 Carriage Guns, 16 Swivels, 40 ſmall Arms, and other warlike Stores proportionable, was taken in this Harbour, loaded with Melaſſes and Bale Goods. There is a Gentleman on board who ſays he was Reſident for the French Court in London in 1752, during the French Embaſſador's Abſence, and affects the Nobleman, and has a great many Waſh Balls, Combs and other Trinkets, ſuitable for the Ladies, or Valet de Chambres, together with valuable Clothes; and gives out that he expected to be taken, and the Veſſel and Cargo confiſcated, otherwiſe it would not anſwer his Deſigns. This Man and other Frenchmen are permitted to go about our Streets, and ſail in our Harbours without a Guard;---an Indulgence, which if juſtifiable at a Time when our Armaments are juſt going upon Action (and for any Thing we know a War may be declared already betwixt England and France) then our Armies and Expences are only Amuſements."

The Indians at Norridgewock, Arreſaguntacook, Weweenock, and St. John's Tribes, and the Indians of the other Tribes inhabiting in the Eaſtern and Northern Parts of his Majeſty's Territories of New-England, the Penobſcot Tribe only excepted, having contrary to their ſolemn Submiſſion to his Majeſty, long ſince made, and frequently renewed, been guilty of the moſt perfidious, barbarous and inhuman Murders of divers of his Majeſty's Engliſh Subjects, and have abſtained from all Commerce and Correſpondence with his Majeſty's ſaid Subjects for many Months paſt; and the ſaid Indians having fully diſcover'd an inimical, traiterous and rebellious Intention and Diſpoſition: His Excellency Governor Shirley has therefore iſſued a Proclamation, bearing Date the 12th Inſtant, declaring the above recited Tribes, the Penobſcots only excepted, to be Enemies, Rebels and Traitors to his moſt ſacred Majeſty. And had likewiſe thought fit to publiſh the Premiums or Bounties following, offered by the General Court of that Province, for the Bodies or Scalps of any of the aforementioned Indians, viz.

For every Male Indian Priſoner above the Age of Twelve Years, that ſhall be taken and brought to Boſton, Fifty Pounds.

For every Male Indian Scalp, brought in as Evidence of their being killed, Forty Pounds.

For every Female Indian Priſoner, taken and brought in as aforeſaid, and for every Male Indian Priſoner under the Age of Twelve Years, taken and brought in as aforeſaid, Twenty-five Pounds.

For every Scalp of ſuch Female Indian, or Male Indian, under twelve Years, brought as Evidence of their being killed, as aforeſaid, Twenty Pounds.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.

Tueſday laſt being the Grand Anniverſary or Feaſt of St. JOHN the Baptiſt, the Brethren of that moſt ancient and worſhipful Society, the FREE and ACCEPTED MASONS, went in a regular Proceſſion from the Lodge-Room, to attend Divine Service at Chriſt-Church, in this City. The Order in which they proceeded, was as follows:

I. The Sword Bearer, carrying a drawn Sword.

II. Six Stewards, with white Rods, walking two and two.

III. The GRAND SECRETARY, and GRAND TREASURER, who bore each a Crimſon Damaſk Cuſhion, on one of which was laid the Bible, and on the other the Book of Conſtitutions.

IV. A Reverend BROTHER.

V. The GRAND MASTER, ſupported by two Brethren of Rank and Diſtinction.

VI. The DEPUTY GRAND MASTER, ſupported in like Manner.

VII. The two GRAND WARDENS.

VIII. Two MEMBERS of the Grand Lodge.

IX. The THREE ORDERS, Dorick, Ionick, and Corinthian, carried by three Tylers.

X. The three Maſters of the three regular Lodges in this City.

XI. The two Wardens of the Firſt Lodge.

XII. The two Wardens of the Second Lodge.

XIII. The two Wardens of the Third Lodge.

XIV. The three Secretaries of the three Lodges.

XV. The three Treaſurers of the three Lodges.

XVI. The Viſiting Brethren, walking two and two.

XVII. The Members of the Firſt, Second, and Third Lodges, two and two.

XVIII. Six Stewards, with their Rods, two and two.

XIX. The Grand Maſter's, Governor Morris's, Governor Tinker's, and others of the Brethrens Coaches and Chariots, empty.

The whole Number of Maſons amounted to 127, who being all new cloathed with Aprons, white Gloves and Stockings, and the Officers in the proper Cloathing and Jewels of their reſpective Lodges, with their other Badges of Dignity, made a handſome and genteel Appearance.

When the Proceſſion came into Market-ſtreet, both in going to, and coming from Church, they were ſaluted by a Diſcharge of Nine Cannon from a Brother's Veſſel, handſomely ornamented with Colours, which lay oppoſite the ſaid Street, for that Purpoſe.

The Proceſſion enter'd the Church in the Order of their March, and the Brethren ſeated themſelves in the Pews of the middle Iſle, which were purpoſely kept empty for them. After which Prayers were read by the Rector, the Rev. Dr. JENNEY, and a moſt excellent and well adapted Sermon was preached by our reverend and worthy Brother WILLIAM SMITH, A. M. The Words of the Text were, Love the Brotherhood, fear God, honour the King, 1. Pet. ii. 17. And the Scope of the Diſcourſe was to ſhew that the Obſervance of theſe three Grand Duties is not only the Foundation of the ancient Society of Free Maſons, but of Societies of every Kind. The Preacher therefore firſt deduced the Obligation to theſe Duties in a clear and philoſophical Manner, from undeniable Principles. He then added many engaging Motives to a correſpondent Practice, and concluded with an earneſt and pathetick Exhortation, firſt to the Audience in general, and then to the Fraternity of Maſons in particular, to conſider that in our preſent critical Situation, our Succeſs and future Glory, as a People, depend on our Regard to Religion, Unanimity among ourſelves, and a firm Attachment to our civil Privileges, and to our gracious King, who is the juſt Guardian of them.---Both before and after Sermon, Pſalms were ſung ſuitable to the Occaſion.

After Divine Service was over, the Proceſſion returned in the ſame Order to the Lodge Room to Dinner; the muſical Bells belonging to the Church, and a Band of Muſick before them, at the ſame Time playing the Tune of the Enter'd Apprentice's Song. The whole Ceremony was conducted with the utmoſt Decorum and Solemnity, and, as we hear, afforded great Satisfaction to the Inhabitants in general.

After Dinner, the following Toaſts were drank in the Maſonic Manner, under repeated Diſcharges of Cannon, planted in the Square adjoining the Lodge Room.

1. The KING and the CRAFT.
2. The GRAND MASTER of England.
3. Our Brother FRANCIS, Emperor of Germany.
4. The GRAND MASTER of Pennſylvania.
5. Our Brother, His Honour the Governor of Pennſylvania.
6. Our Brother, His Excellency JOHN TINKER, Eſq; Governor of Providence, returning him Thanks for this his kind Viſit.
7. The GRAND MASTER of Scotland.
8. The GRAND MASTER of Ireland.
9. The ſeveral Provincial GRAND MASTERS of North-America and the Weſt-India Iſlands.
10. All charitable Maſons.
11. All true and faithful Maſons, whereſoever diſperſed or diſtreſſed, throughout the Globe.
12. The Arts and Sciences.
13. General BRADDOCK, and Succeſs to His Majeſty's Forces.

The greateſt Order and Regularity was obſerved, Chearfulneſs, Harmony, and good Fellowſhip abounded, during the whole Time of Meeting; and at Five a Clock in the Afternoon, the Grand Maſter having cloſed the Lodge, the Brethren return'd to their reſpective Homes.

N. B. Before the Lodge was cloſed, the Grand Maſter, at the Deſire, and in the Name and Behalf of the Grand Lodge, and the Maſters and Brethren of the three regular Lodges, return'd the Thanks of the Society to the Reverend Mr. Smith for his Sermon, and requeſted that a Copy thereof might be immediately ſent to the Preſs, which is accordingly done.

From Fort Cumberland there is Advice, that on the Fourteenth Inſtant 150 Men march'd from thence, to protect the Workmen, that are cutting a Road from the Back Parts of this Province towards the Ohio, from the French or their Indians: That an Indian Man and Woman had lately come there from Fort Du Queſne, and poſitively ſay, that there are not above 200 Men, French and Indians, in that Fort; and that a Party of the Indians, with ſome French, were to ſet out ſoon, in order to harraſs any Stragglers from our Army on their March.

The ſame Day Captain Condy arriv'd in Ten Days from Halifax, and adviſes, that the New-England Forces were got ſafe to the Bay of Fundi, and had diſarm'd the Neutral French: And that the Day before he ſail'd, a Flag of Truce arriv'd there from Cape-Breton, to demand the Schooner, ſeiz'd lately by Captain Cobb; the Maſter of which reported, that Six French Men of War had got to Louiſburgh, one of which was a 64 Gun Ship.
